Tim Kohl

Don't miss this show featuring the fine crafting skills from our talented woodworker, Tim Kohl. Come experience his "live edge" mirrors and table creations first hand to appreciate them!

"I am a self-taught woodworker; my journey took a turn about 10 years ago when a Tulip poplar decided to take out our kitchen. Rather than burn the logs or give them away for fire wood I started to use a chainsaw mill and air dry my lumber. Friends and neighbors began giving me logs and unused barn lumber. The repurposing of this wonderful lumber gave me a perfect medium to grow as a craftsman. To be perfectly honest I did graduate from YouTube University.

All my projects are made from repurposed lumber. I have used eastern red cedar as lining for Humidors, walnut salvaged from a shed, cherry, white and red oak from logs found on the side of the road or gifted. I began by making small boxes, noodle boards, and other accessories, I am now focused on live edge mirrors and a table. Not sure what is next so we'll do what the lumber suggests."

"COALESCENCE: THE ART OF COLLABORATION"

When we started planning our collaboration show at the beginning of the year, we thought Valerie Pollard had a great idea. We all quickly got on board with the concept. But how would our gallery patrons respond? Well, you showed up and gave us our best opening in a couple of years! Sales were great and positive comments were off the charts! Thanks for all your support.

Many pieces have sold but several are still available both at the gallery and at our online store! (A select few are featured with links below!)
